

WOMAN SAVED PASTOR HIT BY JEALOUS MAN

Organist, Cause of Assault, Seized Husband as He Swung Hammer.

(Special to The Evening World.)
GREENWICH, Conn., April 2.—The Rev. John Kopp, pastor of the German Lutheran Church, who is in a precarious condition as a result of the vicious attack made on him by the jealous husband of one of his parishioners, today declared that he would have been beaten to death had not Mrs. De Paul, wife of his assailant, rushed to his rescue.

"As Albert De Paul was raining blows on my head with a hammer his wife grabbed his arm and saved my life," said the Rev. Mr. Kopp. "I owe my life to her. De Paul was insanely jealous, and his mind was poisoned."

The pastor today sent a reassuring message to his aged mother, who lives at No. 45 Ross street, Williamsburg. He was greatly worried lest the news of the assault upon him might prove fatal to her.

While the doctors are trying to save Pastor Kopp's life, the police are making a search for De Paul. He disappeared immediately after the attack and it is believed that he went to New York. The New York Detective Bureau was asked today to apprehend him.

With only one eye visible through the bandages the Rev. Kopp today told the story of the assault. He is in the home of one of his flock. The address is being kept secret.

De Paul will attempt to carry out his avowed intention to slay the minister. Constable James J. Neely is on guard at the minister's home.

"De Paul was insanely jealous," said the Rev. Mr. Kopp. "But he always treated me kindly and I have no idea he would injure me. I did not pay any more attention to his wife than to any other woman in my congregation. De Paul attended the evening services several times and once spoke of joining the church, but I discouraged him because he is a Catholic, and I didn't want him to change his religion."

"I am satisfied that I intended to kill me. I was walking with one of the Sunday-school children last night and as we neared the church door De Paul jumped out from the shadow and struck me on the back of the head with a heavy hammer. He staggered and cried out and he struck me again."

"Mrs. De Paul was standing ahead with her sister and when she saw De Paul hit me she ran to him and caught hold of his arm. He said, 'God's sake, are you going to kill him? He should be so young and attractive.'"

"The latest trouble was over a gown the women made for him to wear at the confirmation services. The young women wanted him to keep it, but the pastor wanted it to remain the property of the church. Then the men held an indignation meeting because the women liked my gown well. They didn't think I ought to be a minister should be so young and attractive."

MRS. FRANK'S AUTO NOT ONE WANTED

Carried Wrong Number, But Never Bumped Into Jerome's Buzz Wagon.

District Attorney Jerome's search for automobile No. 579 led to complications when a policeman arrested Edward O'Brien, chauffeur for Mrs. H. S. Frank, of the Hotel Woodward, Broadway and Fifty-fifth street, a sister of Mrs. Frank Guzenheim, wife of one of the Baltimore copper smelters.

Bicycle Policeman Kerrigan saw the number "579" dangling from the rear of Mrs. Frank's automobile brougham and promptly arrested her chauffeur. As he couldn't explain the car, he was held for trial on the high charge of having bumped Mrs. Jerome's buzz wagon.

Mrs. Frank went to the West Side Court today and explained to Municipal Judge that her license was No. 580 and that the man who painted her number got the numbers twisted. She furnished a case but the men charged her with the crime.

'Squire's Etiquette.

BY WALTER A. SINCLAIR.

When writing to Commissioners be careful of the way in which you start and end the words that you may have to say. Be careful of the style you use, and do not once forget to use the good and rigid rules of royal etiquette. Although you need not start it with "Your Majesty" or "Sire," Do not omit, in writing him, the title "Esquire."

Purchase in time 'twill come about that foremen on their jobs will be addressed respectfully by "servants" as "Your Nobs." And humble clerks will find they have an awful mess to face if, speaking to a deputy, they fail to say "Your Grace." It must be quite a cinch to make the "servants" that you hire Respectfully address you with the title of "Esquire."

The ways of royal etiquette develop many bumps. That never bothered Joseph in the days when in the dumps. No doubt, from high position on your yellow-creatures' neck. A man who deals in docks and ships could add the ending "Rex." It must be fine and dandy, with the privilege to fire. A disobeying "servant" who forgets to write "Esquire."

In looking up the matter now to set ourselves aright. We find "Esquire" stands for one who follows up a knight. Then slowly reason dawns on us where all at first was dim. Oh, what a night it must have been to cause that ukase grim! A night with gray dawn trailing on and katzenjammer pain. Respectfully, obedient, your servants we remain.

SYNAGOGUE ROBBERS CAUGHT WITH GOODS

Halted by Policeman with Pistol, One Says He Is Joe Burke, Prize Fighter.

YONKERS, N. Y., April 2.—Policeman Michael Madden, while walking along the New York Central tracks near Pier street, in the lower part of the city, early today saw two men approaching on a run, going south toward New York. He stepped into the shadow of a tree until they were near him, and then with revolver leveled stopped them.

Each carried a bundle in which were jewel robes such as are worn by Jewish rabbis, silver candlesticks and other church articles.

The prisoners described themselves as Samuel Phillips, alias Joseph Burke, a prize fighter, of Philadelphia, and Harry Brownstein. Phillips said he was well known in pugilistic circles and had fought many bouts in the Quaker City. Both gave their places of residence as a lodging house on the Bowery, in Manhattan.

The police were notified later that a robbery had occurred at the Synagogue of the Congregation Ohav Shalom, on Prospect street, Yonkers, the wealthiest Jewish church in Westchester County, and the articles found in possession of the prisoners were afterward identified as having been stolen from there.

According to the police, the men made a confession, but each accused the other of having actually done the stealing. They were held for examination.

SACKY, A $1,500 RUG AND MISS C. PAGE

All Figure in Mysterious Arrest of the Man for Alleged Larceny.

Miss Clara E. Page, a beautiful young society woman of No. 24 West Fifty-sixth street, was complainant in a mysterious case in the West Side Court today, when she accused Albert Sacky, thirty-eight years old, of No. 237 West One Hundred and Ninth street, of selling her tapestry rug for $1,500 and failing to give her any part of the money.

Sacky, who is good-looking, is partner in a big cattle scheme with the Prince de Martino, of Cairo, Egypt. This cattle scheme is also involved in the charges against Sacky, for Miss Page told Magistrate Wahl that she had lost $1,500 in it, which she wouldn't have lost had she not met the handsome Russian.

Through the case went over until Wednesday without any threatening outlets of the following series of telegrams sent to Sacky by Miss Page during February and March was exhibited by James Nugent, counsel for the prisoner, who was arrested last night by Policeman Meade, of the One Hundredth street station. All the despatches were addressed:

"Sacky, Beers, Hotel, St. Louis.
"Wired 40. Depending absolutely on your taking the morning's train for here. Delay dangerous. Now wire instantly true time of train arriving in the station."

"Have managed to borrow $2,000, which must be returned Tuesday. We will all be all right until then. Sell tapestry at any price and return immediately.
Otherwise it is up to me to disappear unless you are here to back me up.
Wire your plans immediately. Am worried stiff. C. PAGE, Lafayette Hotel."

"Am in trouble. Can't hold out much longer. Wire plans. Desperate."
C. PAGE.

"Will wire it early. Everything all right if you leave instantly. Otherwise you lose all. Wire Bertie, please."

"Am wiring 20. Important you return.
Close business if possible, as I must have lots of money in a few hours. Im-

"Send Joseph and Bertie diplomatic telegram to-morrow, also money, if possible. I am desperate. Wire me. I will sell your contract to-morrow to Reynolds. Don't fail us for my sake, if for nothing else. You owe it to me."
C. PAGE.

The defendant's counsel also produced the contract in the little deal with Sacky had with the Egyptian Prince, but what it all meant remained in Egyptian darkness.

In adjourning the grand larceny charge the Magistrate ordered the prisoners to be committed to the city jail.
Miss Page is a young woman of considerable wealth. Her home is in California, but she has been spending the winter in this city before starting out on a globe-trotting tour. She has been around the world several times and is popular in the best society in Paris, London, Berlin and other European cities.

She met Sacky three months ago when he was living at the Waldorf. She was attracted by his air of verve and handsome appearance, but when he proposed marriage to her soon after making her acquaintance, she would not hear of it. She says she was induced to send some of the telegrams to him by the two partners, who declared that if she did not bring him back his contract with the Egyptian Prince would fall and she would never recover any of the money she had advanced to him.

"I will prosecute that man to the bitter end," she said to an Evening World reporter, "for I have been shamefully deceived and robbed by him. I am only one of many society women that this man has deceived and robbed."

"I cannot at the present moment tell all of my story. When I do it will be a sensational one. I know that many women of social prominence will come forward to back me up. I am sorry that the court passed this man in the custody of his counsel, for I fear that he will give his lawyer the slip and disappear. This I have learned, has not been his first appearance in a police court."

Before I allowed him to take my tapestry he showed me this contract of his with the Egyptian Prince. I thought if this man can deal in 100,000 head of cattle, surely I can trust him with a much smaller matter."

TRIED SUICIDE AND SLID ON HIS EAR

After Beauty Doctor Gets Through with Him He Will Go to Court.

James Farrell is in the Kings County Hospital. He is under arrest and his face is not a thing of beauty. That is because James skidded on his ear.
He lives with his mother in Mill Lane, near Kips Highway. Farrell, who is father of several young men and left him a snug little sum.
James had previously been devoted to the farm life. He has forsaken it of late. Last night he went out to a supper and came home late. He went into the closet and found the tooth brush. He drank the tooth wash. Then, because it burned his face, he went fully, he went to the window and dove out into the night.
He had intended to light upon his head, but missed his calculation and struck along the grass for a distance of about fifteen feet. When they had separated him from the landscape his nose lived in the grass place and his eyes brows were absent. Likewise a portion of his ear. He was hurried to the hospital, where his anatomy was reassambled. Then he was placed under arrest for trying to make way with himself.
He will be out soon.

lived the third floor at that address, lying at the foot of the stairway in a comatose condition.

ty-second street police station, had her taken to Bellevue Hospital, where it

THIEF WROTE FOR A WIG AND A SAW

Nathan Planned to Get Out of Raymond Street Jail, but Letter Went Astray.

A plan to escape the Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn, was disclosed to-day when Judge Aspinall sentenced Abraham Nathan to four years and eleven months in Sing Sing for burglary.

Nathan was found guilty last week and was brought up to-day for sentence. When asked if he had anything to say, he referred to his attorney, but the Judge interrupted the lawyer.

"I will talk for you in this case," he said. "Nathan, you are one of the worst thieves in the country. You belong to one of the cleverest gangs of crooks in New York. They hang around Chinatown for the most part.
You wrote a letter to one of them while in jail and told him to bring a wig and a saw to you on visiting day.
You would not have hesitated at all to effect your escape. You find it is cheap to come over here. You can walk over the bridge. This will be the last walk for you in many a day. You will go to Sing Sing for four years and eleven months."

The letter was discovered and intercepted by Sheriff Maherty. The last escape from the jail was on the first day of the new administration, when "Doc" Brown, a second-story man, walked out with a visitor's overcoat on his arm.
